

Opposition to ICC Construction Continues, Gains Momentum

by Thomas X. White

Controversy about the Inter-county Connector (ICC) between the I-270 corridor in Montgomery County and the I-95 corridor in northern Prince George's County continues apace. Last year, the Maryland Department of Transportation (MDOT), after beating back opposition, awarded contracts to begin construction of the highway in several phases.

Several news articles in area newspapers during August and September reported that organizations and a growing number of Prince George's County public officials are calling on Governor Martin O'Malley to halt all funding for the 18.8 mile toll highway connector.

Cited were predictions of enormous cost overruns and the news that the state is planning to cut $1.1 billion from transportation projects over the next six years, threatening more than 100 local road and transit projects across the state (including $125 million for Prince George's County) to pay for the ICC.

At the forefront of those calling for the halt are the Maryland Chapter of the Sierra Club, Community Research, the Audubon Naturalist Society and the Coalition for Smart Growth. Separately, a group of Prince George's County elected officials has requested a formal meeting with the governor to discuss cutbacks for their long-sought projects and to convey their resolve that the ICC should not be funded at the expense of so many other critical transportation projects.

The governor's pursuit of the controversial new roadway has angered lawmakers whose districts include highways considered unsafe, such as Route 1 from Laurel to College Park and Branch Avenue between Temple Hills and District Heights.

Trust Fund Deficit

The Federal Highway Trust Fund is expected to run a multibillion-dollar deficit and could jeopardize both the timing and the federal portion of funding for selected transportation projects such as the ICC. (In mid-September, Congress sent to the president a stop-gap bill that provides an emergency injection of $8 billion from the general fund to keep the trust fund solvent.)

A press release from the Sierra Club and other organizations said that the deep cuts in funding "came sharply on the heels of reports that the construction contract for a seven-mile segment of the ICC costs $100-$150 million more than the MDOT had estimated in January of this year and was the second major overrun on an ICC contract. In April 2007 the contract for the first segment cost $70-$140 million more than MDOT had estimated just months earlier."

Citing "rising construction costs, rising fuel prices and huge revenue shortfalls," Montgomery Councilmember Marc Elrich said, "This single mega-project threatens road and transit investments that would serve more people by reducing local congestion, giving people alternatives to driving and improving safety. It's time to pull

State Transportation Cuts Could Affect Greenbelt

by Barbara Hopkins

Scheduled road improvements and transit projects in or near Greenbelt were shelved recently when the State of Maryland Transportation Authority acted to reduce the state's transportation budget by $1.1 billion over six years. Dedicated transportation funds have declined in the state from reductions in gas tax revenues and car sales titling taxes.

Cuts to projects in Prince George's County amount to $125 million and include such nearby projects as the Beltway interchange at the Greenbelt Metro station, improvements to Route 1 from College Avenue to Sunnyside and investment in a Purple Line. Funding remains in place for the Intercounty Connector (ICC), Kenilworth Avenue extended and the Beltway connector road to the University of Maryland.

In a recent press release Delegate Joseline Peña-Melnik of District 21 (which includes College Park) called the postponement of these projects to fund the ICC "absolutely unacceptable and an affront to the citizens of Prince George's County." She and a number of other county lawmakers called on the governor to halt funding for the ICC.

She said, "Some of us were skeptical and now our worst fear – State Highway's admission that the ICC will eat up all of our transportation funding – has proven true." The local lawmakers agreed that canceling funding for the ICC is the only fiscally responsible action now with the state struggling economically and the county's aging roadways in dire need of improvements.

County Executive Jack Johnson was quoted in the press release as having supported the ICC in the past to bolster economic activity in the county but he expressed concerns that $125 million in cuts to the county's transportation infrastructure will "hinder this economic growth." He promised to meet with Governor O'Malley to get county projects back on track.

Prince George's County Council Chair Samuel H. Dean said the cuts "would cripple an already challenging local economy." He

New Plans for a New Greenbelt Middle School Viewed by Public

by Amy S. Hansen

Construction on the new Greenbelt Middle School (GMS) is expected to start May 2009, Prince George's County Public Schools (PGCPS) officials announced at a public hearing on September 15 in the Greenbelt Middle School gymnasium.

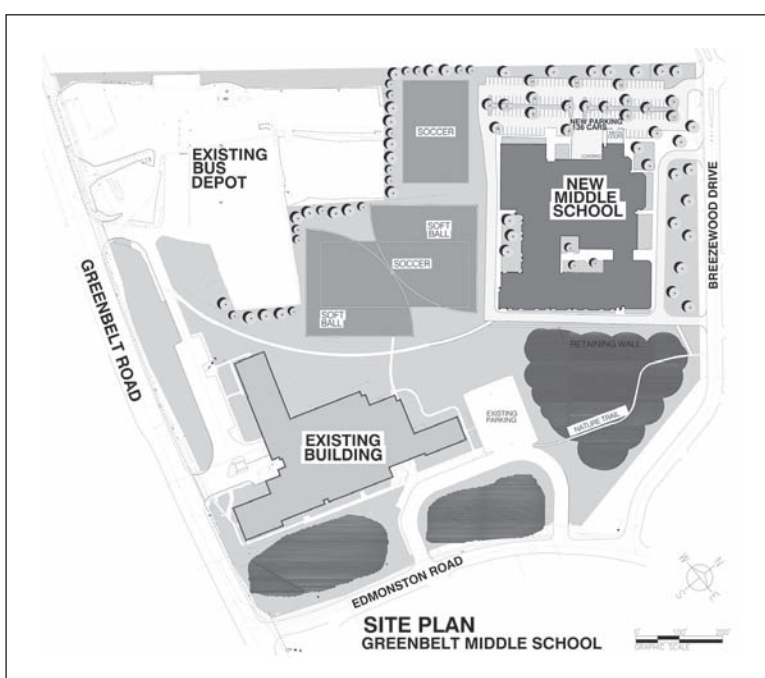

The plans and schematics for the new school were displayed and distributed to the 50 people in attendance. The new school's architect went over the plans in detail.

Then he and PGCPS officials fielded questions about capacity, appropriate environmental considerations, access and the schedule of the building's construction.

The new structure is expected to be a replacement building with the capacity to house 990 students. Current GMS enrollment is 820.

According to Derek Mitchell, executive director of the New and Charter Schools Office, the new middle school will not be expected to have the capacity to accept sixth grade students from any of the feeder schools that are not already sending sixth graders.

Currently the feeder schools for GMS are Greenbelt Elementary, Berwyn Heights Elementary, Springhill Lake Elementary, Paint Branch Elementary, Magnolia Elementary and Hollywood Elementary. Only Springhill Lake

Elementary sends its sixth graders to GMS.

When asked about future capacity to deal with planned housing growth in Greenbelt West, Mitchell pointed out that the new GMS will already be a big school. "Schools of over 1,000 are not good schools," he said, so GMS should not be expanded to meet future enrollment. Rather PGCPS would need to come up with other solutions, such as building more schools.

The new building will be on land already owned by the school system. The current GMS is located at the corner of Greenbelt and Edmonston Roads. The new building will front onto Breezewood Drive in what is now a wooded part of the property.

The plan is to build the new structure while the old GMS is still in place. Once the new building is completed, the non-historic part of the old building will be torn down, leaving the gym, music rooms and a few classrooms of the original building. The bus

Charrette Ideas, Designs Workshops Start Oct. 11

by Frank DeBernardo

The first in a series of four workshops about the future of Greenbelt will be held on Saturday, October 11 from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. at Greenbelt Baptist Church, Crescent and Greenhill Roads.

Sponsored by the Green Ribbon Task Force (GRTF) of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI), the workshops are a follow-up to the Greener Greenbelt charrette which the task force hosted in September 2007. Each workshop will begin with a half-hour slide show that highlights the three-day charrette. The rest of each afternoon will focus on the ideas and designs generated by one of the charrette's four work groups.

The follow-up workshops provide an opportunity for attendees to view the ideas and material generated at the charrette, to learn about the direction that the GRTF is heading in for the future and to find out how Greenbelters can become involved in the process of future planning and implementation.

"The success of the charrette was due to the hundreds of people who turned out to share their ideas and visions," said Jim Cohen, GRTF chair. "The challenge now is to turn these ideas into action for Greenbelt's future and for that we'll also need residents to participate. I'm confident that will happen based on our rich history of resident activism."

The first workshop on October 11 will focus on the GHI dwelling units and grounds. Topics for discussion will include building additions to existing houses, remodeling interiors, retrofitting homes with "green technology" to make units more energy efficient and enhancing sustainability and appearance of the co-op's grounds.

Future workshop topics will be of interest to all Greenbelters, not just GHI members. They will examine increasingly larger scales of Greenbelt that the charrette examined: Roosevelt Center, the neighborhood of Greenbelt's historic core and the Greater

I Don't Get It

Some swastikas and nooses are found behind a school, meriting discussion in the city council, a front page article in the News Review and a $500 reward for information leading to the culprits' arrests. In the same week, a blind man is robbed by a group of five "persons" in Roosevelt Center, resulting in no city council discussion reported, no front page story and no reward for arrests offered. I don't get it.

The next scheduled blood drive is Friday, November 14 from 12:30 to 6 p.m. at the Greenbelt Community Center.

THANKS!

As I was preparing to back out of my driveway on Hillside Road last week, a young man on a skateboard suddenly stopped and stepped into the driveway directly behind my car. I had a split second of "Huh?" and then realized that he could not have known that I was aware of a group of people – two adults with a stroller and several young children approaching. This was the reason for the skateboarder's action – to protect them from the possibility of being hit and me from the possibility of hitting them.

I appreciate his taking the responsibility to ensure the safety of all of us. Thank you!

Thanks Greenbelt

As the days get cooler and shorter, it may be easy to forget that Greenbelt's new Farmers Market is still going strong – but it is! Please continue to support the dozen or so vendors that come to Roosevelt Center every Sunday from 10 to 2 to sell the foods they have produced within 100 miles of Greenbelt. We'll be open through Sunday, October 26.

We are sincerely grateful to you, Greenbelt, for the support you have shown our fledgling market and all of its vendors. We hope to see you on Sunday.

"Crossing Delancey" at GAC Is a Delightful Comedy

by Carol Griffith

The current offering at the Greenbelt Arts Center, "Crossing Delancey," is an absolutely delightful romantic comedy, well staged and performed.

The story is pretty simple: Isabelle (Izzy) is a single young woman, living on her own in New York, who's very close to her 80-year-old grandmother (Bubbie in Yiddish). Bubbie doesn't understand Izzy's way of life or happiness with being single or the changes that the 1980s have brought in society. She tells Izzy repeatedly, "Loneliness is a sickness," and in her desperation to see Izzy married, she asks Hannah, the Lower East Side's matchmaker, to find a suitable man.

When Izzy is cajoled by Bubbie to meet Hannah's choice, Sam, Izzy rejects him. Sam is a working man – he makes and sells pickles, which Izzy finds mundane and unappealing. He also contrasts poorly to the man Izzy finds attractive and dreams about, a handsome, self-absorbed and famous author who frequents the bookstore where Izzy works. How Izzy comes to reconcile her dreams with reality and find love brings many laughs.

There are several very touching scenes of the love between Izzy and Bubbie. Bubbie is played spectacularly by Shelly Rochester, in her third show at GAC, and Bonnie Sarf as Izzy portrays well a young girl trying to follow her dreams and find love.

Sandy Irving, a frequent actor at GAC who turns in excellent performances regardless of the role, gives Tyler Moss, the author for whom Izzy pines, the right amount of callous disregard for others. The dream sequence in which Izzy's wildest dreams about Moss are realized is quite funny.

Michelle Hitchcock plays very well and humorously the conniving, meddling matchmaker and Steve Feder turns in another great performance at GAC as Sam, bringing warmth to the role.

Most of the play's action occurs in two places: the bookstore where Izzy works and Bubbie's kitchen. The two sets are very well done and full of great details, including a 1985 calendar on the wall in Bubbie's kitchen and period magazines in the bookstore.

"Crossing Delancey" is a fun and lighthearted play, bound to lift your spirits and make you believe in love.

"Crossing Delancey" will play on the Friday and Saturday evenings of September 26 and 27, October 3 and 4 and October 10 and 11 at 8 p.m. Sunday matinees are scheduled for September 28 and October 5 at 2 p.m. Reservations may be made through the box office at 301-441-8770 or at the Greenbelt Arts Center at 123 Centerway, located beneath the Co-op supermarket.

Where There's a Will, There's a Playful City

KaBOOM!, a national non-profit dedicated to fostering play in children's lives, has named Greenbelt as one of 67 Playful City USA communities. Joining the announcement was qubo, the television and online service for children (www.qubo.com).

In the second year of the annual program, the City Council of Greenbelt was cited for ensuring the quality of existing playgrounds by creating a new initiative to foot 75 percent of the cost to maintain and upgrade unsafe playgrounds controlled by Home Owner Associations (HOA). In return, the HOAs agree to open their playgrounds to the general public.

Greenbelt City Councilmember Leta Mach took part in the KaBOOM! Playful City USA Founding Forum in Washington, D.C., in early September.

KaBOOM! envisions "a great place to play" within walking distance of every child, while qubo's mission is to promote healthy lifestyles for children. Playful City USA communities serve as role models for other communities.

GIVE THANKS

Every breath that we breathe is a blessing from God and we learn from the Prophet Solomon (peace be upon him) to recognize these blessings each day. The Holy Qur'an tells us how he never forgot to be thankful to God. He is quoted to have said, "This is by the grace of my Lord, to test me whether I am grateful or ungrateful! And if any is grateful, it is (a gain) for his own soul; but if any is ungrateful, truly my Lord is free of all needs, supreme in honor."

— The Holy Qur'an, 27:40

Count your blessings every day. For more information about gratefulness from an Islamic perspective, call 301-982-9463 or email info@searchislam.org or visit www.searchislam.org.

Landscape Is Main Issue Discussed at Senior Forum

by Jon Sham

Once a year the Greenbelt Senior Citizens Advisory Committee hosts a forum where seniors and non-seniors alike may come to discuss issues within the community. On Saturday, September 13 seniors in Greenbelt gathered in the Greenbelt Community Center to continue this tradition.

With the help of volunteers, city councilmembers, including Mayor Judith Davis, a Public Works representative and a microphone, those in attendance were able to voice both their positive feedback and their concerns on a range of issues that affect their lives and the quality of the community. The focus of this year’s discussion centered around landscaping.

Bunny Fitzgerald of Greenbelt East greeted attendees at the door and provided name tags. She stressed that the forum is open to anybody in the community and is “definitely not for seniors only.” Fitzgerald is not one with many complaints. “I usually have positive things to say about the city,” she said, regarding the annual meeting.

Robert Lewis was another attendee with few gripes. He came to the meeting with his wife, Sylvia, who, he says, is the more active one. “I just want to find out what people are concerned about,” he said. (Sylvia Lewis is president of Greenbelt Homes, Inc.)

Upcoming Events

The meeting began just after 1 p.m. with mention of the committee’s 20th anniversary, which will be in 2009. Next, announcements were made on upcoming events, including: free blood pressure screenings on Wednesday, October 1 from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. and the City of Greenbelt Health Fair to be held on Tuesday, October 21 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

After a few general, positive opening comments, the forum took to the issues.

Concerns

Among the topics articulated, many lay in the realm of landscaping, the local environment and the aesthetic qualities of Greenbelt. Fortunately, the right ears were listening.

Lesley Riddle, the city’s new horticulturist, was present at the forum. When complaints about the state of Greenbelt Lake – which seemed to be of interest to many – or matters involving the arboreal inhabitants were brought to the floor, Riddle was there to alleviate concerns. “We’re on top of the whole tree thing,” she said.

Some were concerned about the height of bushes and trees that need to be trimmed because their branches block road signs. Others were beginning to feel the increase of bikers on the path around the lake to be potentially hazardous. They suggested that a separate path be built.

But many attendees were concerned about the state of Greenbelt Lake, which many residents enjoy for various pleasures. They discussed an algae-like accumulation on the lake’s surface, which, according to Rodney Roberts, a city councilmember and mayor pro tem, is a tiny plant called “duckweed” because it is carried on a duck’s feet. It collects on water surfaces as a result of too much fertilizer used in surrounding areas.

Other issues discussed were the underground piping system, which Davis called “a monster project,” but which is, however, in the works. The groups deliberated on metro access for seniors, the establishment of a pit for playing horseshoes, benches for sitting, radar signs to keep drivers conscious of speed limits and stronger enforcement of jaywalking violations – particularly on students walking home from the local schools. The open forum ended shortly thereafter.

As the seniors filtered out of the Community Center, Davis commented on the forum. “I’ve been at these forums for . . . going on 15 years,” she said. “Each year they’re on something different. This year, it was landscaping.”

The mayor, who is in her sixth term, or 11th year (it is a two-year term) in office, mentioned how these meetings are about “information sharing.” “Some folks don’t realize that the city is trying,” she said.

And Riddle is a good example of how the city is trying. She acknowledges that Greenbelt Lake was an ubiquitous concern at the meeting and how its aesthetic value is large. “At Public

New Deal Hosts Resident Songbirds

Three the Hard Way will be a free night of anthems and lullabies at the New Deal Café on Saturday, September 27 from 8 to 11 p.m. Three local talents perform their original songs during “an evening of gentle, fearless music, relevant songwriting and compelling instrumental performance,” says Andre Cutair of the Able Birds.

Over the last eight years, Mary Battiatia (Little Pink) has released three CDs to critical acclaim: “Cul-de-Sac Cowgirl,” “12 Birds” and “Gladly We Would Anchor.”

John Bolten conjures echoes of Appalachian balladeers within his songs, evoking the introspective and moody.

The Able Birds create a musical stew reminiscent of Sufjan Stevens, Wilco and Sam Beam (Iron and Wine).

Works,” she said, “we try to address things as expediently as we can.” If there is something that needs to be done, Riddle says, “we’ll do it immediately.”

Notice of Charter Amendment Resolution No. 2008-1

At its regular meeting of September 8, 2008, the City Council adopted a resolution to amend the City Charter. As required by state law, this resolution will be posted in its entirety for 40 days, until October 18, at the Municipal Building, as well as on the City’s Web site at www.greenbeltmd.gov. A copy may also be requested of the City Clerk. The charter amendment will be effective on October 28, 2008, unless a proper petition to submit the amendment to the voters on a referendum is filed as permitted by law. This notice is given to provide a fair summary of the resolution, as also required by state law.

A Resolution . . . to Amend the Charter of the City of Greenbelt . . . by Amending Paragraph (d), “Powers,” of Section 12, Titled “Employee Relations Board” to Provide that the Employee Relations Board be Empowered to Hear Grievances Arising out of Collective Bargaining Agreements: Subsequent to a referendum question on the ballot of the 2005 City election, the City Council amended the City Code to include a Labor Code for the purpose of recognizing the right of certain police officers to organize and bargain collectively. The Labor Code requires that all collective bargaining agreements (CBAs) must include a grievance procedure containing a provision for binding decision by the City’s Employee Relations Board (ERB). Since the existing powers of the ERB in grievance procedures were limited to making recommendations to the City Council, it was necessary to amend the charter to enable the ERB to address grievances arising out of CBAs as required by the Labor Code.

For additional information, contact
Cindy Murray, City Clerk, at 301-474-8000 or cmurray@greenbeltmd.gov.

encouraged a meeting between state and county officials to “determine county priorities and ultimately reconsider this action.”

According to an article by Katherine Shaver in The Washington Post on September 12, the part of the ICC that would help move traffic on and off Interstate 95 near the ICC will also be delayed indefinitely because another part of the project came in $100 million over budget, although the article also said State Transportation Secretary John D. Porcari called ICC construction on schedule and within budget.

According to the article, the state postponed sale of $425 million in bonds to help fund the road because of the uncertainty of federal transportation dollars since federal officials had recently announced the transportation trust fund is on the verge of depletion.

City Response

Greenbelt Mayor Judith Davis requested that the topic of transportation cuts be included on the agenda of the city council’s meeting on September 22. She moved, and council agreed, that the city send a letter to the governor supporting the position of local legislators and stressing how the cuts will impact the city and neighboring communities.

She wants to know why so many of the cuts were planned in Prince George’s County, noting that cuts to transportation projects in Montgomery County amount to only $24 million. The cuts to projects within Prince George’s County are among the highest in the state. Councilmember Konrad Herling suggested including the city’s priorities in transportation projects and mentioning impacts on the environment when transit-oriented development is cut in favor of projects that bring more vehicles onto the roads.

When Councilmember Rodney Roberts requested that the public be aware of the letter’s contents before it is sent, Davis suggested publishing it in the News Review.

Resident Bill Orleans told council that the state Secretary of Transportation will be coming to Greenbelt soon. He suggested the city erect signs welcoming him and in effect create a forum for showing him how the city is satisfied, or not, with his department’s services. Councilmember Edward Putens suggested Orleans coordinate such an event, to which Orleans responded that he doubted the citizens or council of Greenbelt would want him to take any action on their behalf. He reminded all present that the secretary’s visit will be a public meeting to which no invitation is necessary. Davis asked him to find out the date of this visit.

depot, which is next to the middle school, will lose some land. However, once the existing GMS building has been demolished, the depot will regain an equivalent amount of land.

Architects

The building was designed by Delmar Architects of Olney. Architect Gene Delmar pointed out how the school meets many environmental criteria to make it a LEED (Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design) building. The classrooms will face southeast to make effective use of sunlight. The soccer field will cover a geothermal pump that will help heat the building. Additionally, the courtyard allows for natural light in all the rooms.

School officials invited members of the public to see the effectiveness of the LEED architecture by visiting public events at other new schools in the area, including Vansville Elementary in Beltsville.

Access to the school was called into question by several people, including Ann Davis, a representative of Berwyn Heights Advisory Committee on Education. She asked about a safer system to get to school for students who need to cross Greenbelt Road.

Lawrence Fryer, chief operating officer of support services, answered that it was only recently that the school system, not the Department of Transportation, had the responsibility for such crossings. However, the new building does not have a budget for an overpass. Such an overpass would cost on the order of $1 million, according to Greenbelt Mayor Judith Davis. She agreed that Greenbelt should also be working for safer crossing, potentially looking at an overpass.

The new building has been approved for design by the state and is still on schedule for a 2010 opening.

On September 14 in the 9100 block Springhill Lane, a resident man and a nonresident man were arrested and charged with theft and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. The vehicle, a 2001 Dodge Grand Caravan, had been reported stolen. Both men were transported to the Department of Corrections for a hearing before a district court commissioner.

Theft from vehicles was reported in the following areas: 7200 block Morrison Drive (GPS); 6100 block Springhill Drive (rear tag); 6200 block Springhill Court (CD player); 6400 block Ivy Lane (two incidents – CB radio, two pneumatic-type air guns, GPS, phone charger, credit cards); 7800 block Walker Drive (GPS); 9100 block Edmonston Court (front tag); 7600 block Hanover Parkway (tires, rims, TV/CD player); 6000 block Springhill Drive (registration sticker); 6000 block Springhill Drive (leaf blower, weed whacker); 9200 block Edmonston Road (tags); 7500 block Mandan Road (wheel covers); and 7800 block Emily's Way (camera).

In the Edmonston Road incident, a woman looked out her window and saw two men near her vehicle after hearing the sound of glass breaking. The suspects are described as a Latino male, 5'6" to 5'9", 180 pounds with black hair and brown eyes, wearing all black clothing; and a Latino male, 5'6" to 5'9", 140 pounds with black hair and brown eyes, wearing all black clothing.

PGCPS Resumes Math Homework Help

The Prince George's County Public Schools (PGCPS) has resumed its award-winning "Count on Us" homework hotline call-in show. Airing each Monday and Wednesday at 4 p.m. for elementary schools and at 5 p.m. for secondary schools, the call-in math homework help show is on Channel 96 on Comcast and Channel 38 on Verizon FIOS.

PGCPS teachers take calls from students and help them work through difficult mathematical equations. At the same time teachers try to make each call a fun and memorable exercise. The number of callers increased with each show from the first show that aired in October 2007 through the end of the school year. Students are encouraged to call in at 301-772-0080.

US Botanical Garden Hosts Mid-day Tours

Free lunchtime tours of the Conservatory are held every Thursday from noon to 1 p.m. in October and November except Thanksgiving Day. Stop by the information desk to meet the tour guide. Feel free to bring lunch and eat on a bench in the garden.

the plug on the ICC and reinvest the money in projects that will reduce traffic, improve public transportation and truly benefit Maryland commuters and taxpayers [more] than the ICC."

No Bike Path

Bicycling advocates who were persuaded to support the ICC earlier have learned that their dream of a continuous, off-road bicycle and walking trail along the ICC is now in jeopardy. In an August 21 article in The Washington Post, Montgomery County planners said that a continuous 10-foot wide asphalt bike path would cause too much damage to ecologically sensitive parkland traversed by the toll road between Gaithersburg and Laurel.

In a column in the Baltimore Sun on September 21, Dan Rodricks labels the ICC the "Intercounty Anachronism." Rodricks asks, "Should this big, new highway be a priority at a time when we should be encouraging more public transportation and controlled growth? The ICC is an anachronism and the time for it has come and gone."

Are You Tired?

You Need Yoga Nidra

Friday, Oct. 3rd, 8:00-9:00 pm
Yoga Nidra (“yogic sleep”) is the yogic tranquilizer, a rejuvenating practice for reducing the stresses of daily life. In a place between the waking and sleeping states, students relax deeply on the physical, emotional and mental levels, and the practice sows new seeds of positive change in our minds. Yoga nidra guides students through awareness of sensations, emotions, and beliefs using a systematic method developed thousands of years ago. This meditative class is conducted with students lying down and requires no previous yoga experience. $17

Reel Lawnmower Team Wins Top Parade Awards

by Tom Jones

The Greenbelt Reel Lawnmower Society Precision Drill Team won Best in Parade, first in Community and Most Humorous categories in the 2008 Greenbelt Labor Day Parade. The all-volunteer team marched in support of their message that citizens “KICK GAS” lawnmowers in the interest of the environment and personal well-being. They are donating part of their award to the Greenbelt Community Foundation.

Video and photos of the team are available at the website <http://spril.com/mowers>.

Drill Team

The drill team was conceived by Alan Turnbull, a GHI resident who sought to increase visibility of the simple reel lawnmower. “For those of us with modest yards, reel lawnmowers are the ideal mowing solution,” Turnbull said. “Compared to gasoline engines, these classic machines save time and money. They don’t pollute, emit no greenhouse gases and reduce our dependence on foreign oil, while being safer for the mowing public and bystanders alike.”

The drill team practiced their precision drill maneuvers for over one week.

Drill Routine

Choreographer Karen Wallace said, “It’s easy to choreograph push mowers because they’re maneuverable and lightweight. Try lifting a gas mower in the air – if you can even breathe through its toxic cloud.”

Team members in the parade marched in step down Crescent Road with call-and-response chants. They performed their choreographed routine at intersections with Hillside Road, Gardenway and in front of judges at the reviewing stand.

Reel Mowers

The Greenbelt Reel Lawnmower Society encourages everyone to consider reel lawnmowers. Drill team members use reel and electric mowers but have seen riding mowers trimming even GHI yards.

While many Americans have gotten used to the gasoline-powered mower, the society asks people to step back and consider how much time and effort a gasoline mower involves. Even when they work, gas lawnmower engines are notorious for seizing up over the winter and being hard to start – and it’s even harder to refill their gas tanks without spilling fuel. At 95 decibels most gasoline mowers are so loud that they can cause long-term hearing damage. The Environmental Protection Agency reports that a typical gasoline mower emits as much pollution as 11 cars.

For people with small lawns reel push mowers can be a major time saver. A reel mower is much more maneuverable than a heavy gas mower and takes up less space. They never need gas, have no engine to maintain and last much longer than gas mowers. Each year 74,000 American emergency room and ambulance visits are caused by lawnmower trauma including eye injuries, burns and amputations but only a tiny fraction of lawnmower injuries are accidents with a reel mower.

The society knows that reel mowers aren’t right for every yard but they are right for most of us. If your lawn is too big for a reel mower, an electric cord mower is the next option to consider; they’re still quieter, lighter, less polluting and easier to maintain than gasoline engines. (Four team members share one electric mower they purchased together.) Battery-powered mowers will cover all but extremely large yards. They require far less maintenance than gasoline engines. Whatever the type of mower, be sure to keep it maintained. Drill team members have gone to Strosnider’s Hardware in Bethesda, which has a lawnmower repair and sharpening service. Always be sure to wear closed-toed shoes for those who wish to keep their toes.

Arboretum Features Chili Peppers

They will share ideas for culinary uses of a variety of chili peppers. No registration is required. Visit www.usna.usda.gov or call 202-245-5898 for information.

Rehearsal at UM

On Wednesday, October 1 at 5 p.m. the UM School of Music will present the Guarneri String Quartet in open rehearsal. Now in its 27th year in residence at the School of Music, the quartet will continue its tradition of on-campus public rehearsals. This free performance will take place in Gildenhorn Recital Hall of the Clarice Smith Performing Arts Center.

The charrette produced hundreds of ideas and drawings, Cohen explained, which focused on methods of sustainability, livability, affordability and historic preservation that Greenbelt can employ in the coming decades, as GHI and the entire city approach Greenbelt’s 100th anniversary in 2037.

In the months since the charrette the Green Ribbon Task Force has focused on analyzing and organizing charrette ideas into an understandable format for people to digest. At the upcoming focus sessions, material will be presented as a slide show, with accompanying drawings and plans displayed around the room.

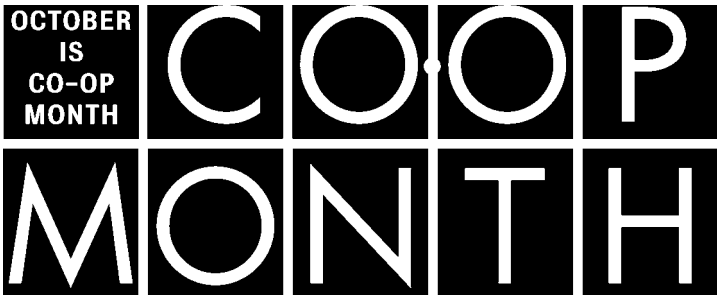

After this presentation, workshop participants will have the opportunity to offer feedback or ask questions about GRTF’s future plans. The participants will then have the opportunity to consider how, as individuals, they can contribute to more in-depth discussions and plans for putting the ideas into practice in a timely manner.

“At this point, we are seeking feedback about the direction that the GRTF is taking with regard to the charrette ideas,” explained Cohen. “Additionally, we hope that Greenbelt residents will share their passion and expertise on particular matters so that we can make these ideas reality.”

This first workshop will discuss issues such as new methods of insulating GHI homes, retrofits for more energy-efficient, green technology for heating and cooling, devising space-saving methods of interior redesign, proposals for building additions and ways of improving the landscape environment for security and recreation purposes.

The topics and dates for the second, third and fourth workshops are: Enhancing Roosevelt Center on Saturday, October 25; Greening Old Greenbelt on Sunday, October 26; and Planning Solutions for Greater Greenbelt and the Region on Sunday, November 2. All workshops are scheduled from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. at Greenbelt Baptist Church.
